Councilman John Robinson
City Council
Fort Wayne, Indiana

Dear Councilman Robinson:

As per your request, this will serve to confirm our conversation of February 27, 1967, relative to problems confronting cities and towns and what the Legislature might do to help in this vital area.

Each year, more and more of our population shifts to the urban areas and with this shift, the problems multiply. As you well know, our cities and towns are "wards" of the State under our present Constitution which means that the Legislature, every two years, acts as a large city council for all the urban areas of Indiana. At one time, this may have been necessary; however, this practice today seems to imply that cities are incapable of taking care of themselves and that the Legislature is saying: "the people are not capable of electing qualified city administrations and councils---in effect, unable to govern themselves---and, thus, the General Assembly must do the job." This is completely ridiculous and untrue and this practice must be changed.

All legislation pertaining to cities and towns must first be passed out of that Committee. During my first term, in which I have served on this Committee, various problems from across the State have come before us. It is, indeed, discouraging to witness a 15-man committee discussing and passing on legislation of which they know little about, as there may be one person on the committee with any real knowledge of the problem. We then get into long discussions because someone wishes to hold the reins. If I were to sit as Chairman, of the Cities and Towns Committee, I would pass out any "may" legislation to come before this group. After all, the time has come, and is long overdue, that cities be allowed to handle their own affairs. If additional funds are necessary, let the city involved solve this problem in the most realistic manner through one of several ways: a payroll tax, increased bonding authority, a city sales tax, etc. To grow and prosper, cities must be allowed to compete among themselves and not be held down by a paternalistic State Government. True, we can price ourselves out of the market---yes, even out of a city, so to speak. But, I have more faith in our local officials than this---and know that, for the most part, they are competent, conscientious, and dedicated individuals.

Councilman John Robinson - page two
February 28, 1967

During this session, I have been harping on "local option" and "home rule". I have heard many others saying the same thing but when it comes down to "brass tacks", they seem to talk out of both sides of their mouths. Believe me, your Allen County Representatives realize the problems and have been working toward solving them. The main problem exists under our 1851 State Constitution and until this is changed and/or up-dated, our hands are tied.

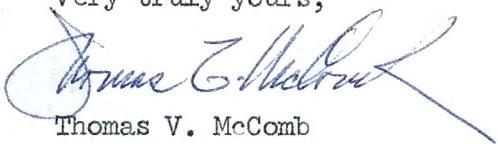

If I were to make one suggestion, it would be to make certain that enough Representatives and Senators are elected from cities and towns who realize the problems and are willing to work toward solving them under our present structure. The Cities must become more active in getting their problems and solutions before the Legislature, to demand action be taken, and demonstrate their ability to carry through. I must admit, that during this session I saw our Mayor, Comptroller and only two members of our City Council in Indianapolis. There is, frankly, no reason why positive programs cannot be formulated by the cities well before the Legislature begins, so that they have the chance of being enacted into law. Every member of the

Councilman John Robinson - page three
February 28, 1967

Council should be eager to work with his Representatives to make certain that progressive legislation is passed. If cities and towns do not wish for the Legislature to run their affairs, then they must take the initiative to correct the situation.

Between now and the next session of the Legislature, I would be more than happy to meet with the City at any time in an attempt to help correct some of our local problems. Cities and towns throughout the State, and Ft. Wayne in particular, are to be commended on the way they have managed to cope with these problems under such a handicap. Hopefully, this situation can be corrected in the near future, through positive thinking on the part of both cities and the State of Indiana.

Very truly yours,

Thomas V. McComb
State Representative
